HONGKONG, SEPTEMBER 12th, 1907.

AN esteemed contemporary has succeeded in deeply interesting us with its "philosophy of squeeze," approaching the subject from an entirely different point of view to that we recently adopted. It holds up in one hand the conspicuous civility and dignity of the Chinese, and in the other their alleged cupidity and mendacity. Having invited us to look on this picture, and then on that, our contemporary puts the poser, "Is Chinese dignity a sham?" and "If it is not, how can it square with Chinese avarice?" It is a quaint situation to conjure up, and to guard as far as we can against misrepresenting our contemporary's presentation of the problem, we may give some of its own words. "Now we must either admit," it says, "that Chinese dignity is, as a matter of fact, nothing more than a sham, or we must show that it is independent of its attitude towards money."

In conclusion, it decides that Chinese dishonesty is irrelevant to Chinese dignity, with these words, "There is no real antagonism between Chinese dignity and Chinese 'squeeze' because, however much we may regret it, there is no connection whatever between the two." There is no mathematical device for which we have such unfeigned affection as the process of discovering the least or lowest common multiple. It is the only principle of arithmetic for which we could ever summon up any admiration; the only branch of the science of numbers whose reason and justice ever pierced our dislike of figures and figuring. We love it because it is one way of making sums easier. The process appeals to us in other things. Where possible we like to reduce everything to its simplest terms. When our contemporary talks about the irrelevance of honesty, remarking that "since the expediency of honesty is only to be estimated by the strengthening influences it exercises upon similar conceptions, it is not included in the morality of Chinese life, and we are presented with yet another paradox, that the Chinese can be dishonest without being undignified, simply because his dignity cannot be held to be in any way connected with a conception of which his practical life knows nothing," we confess to being in some mental haze; we years for a simplification of multiples. Can a dignified Chinaman squeeze? If that is the question, we could answer it straight off. Can a Chinese squeeze with dignity? That also assumes no formidability. We at once recall the imperturbable dignity of the "boy" who, on its being conclusively demonstrated that the amah could not have had access to the decanter from which the sherry had wandered, shook his head and expressed his regretful fear that amahs as a class were not to be trusted. Also that other who accounted for some missing crème de menthe by suggesting that the cook had put it in the soup, and on being warned against falsehood, declared earnestly that "apostum Chinaman talkee lie, he fall down dead chop-chop." What, again, can surpass the dignity of the tradesman who, in ignorance of the fact that you can read the price-mark, overcharges you twenty or thirty per cent, and smilelessly and unwinkingly hands you the balance of your change when you point out his perfidy? Certainly, if that be the question, dignity and squeeze present no entanglement. Who said they did? Let us hark back a little. Our contemporary enlarges on the Chinese dread of "losing face." "Personal dignity must never be compromised," and the stage of life must always be trodden with a proud front, a dignified bearing and a perpetual calm. Yet this does not interfere with their "passion for money." Why should it? Why should it interfere with any of their predilections nor germinate? The dignity of Mr. WHACKFORD SQUEEZA was not impaired by the rest of his behaviour. Mr. DOMEY, senior, maintained his while guilty of numerous little-nesses; and the indubitable dignity of that architect and landsurveyor of Salisbury, Mr. PICKENIER, has passed into a proverb. When we read that "the practice of 'squeeze,' with all the dishonesty it entails, reveals the Chinese in anything but a dignified attitude," we begin to realize that there may be more than one conception of dignity. We begin to suspect that the curious problem suggested itself to our contemporary through a momentary confusion of dignity (as we define it) with honour. Honour may intrinsically belong to a man, or it may be conferred upon him, but essentially, and strictly speaking, it should be the intrinsic quality of a man of honour. Dignity, in its derivation, would be almost synonymous, but in practice and in fact it is something altogether different. It is extrinsic, assumed. A dishonourable person may be eminently dignified, and a very dignified person may be exceedingly dishonourable. Hence the perplexity of our contemporary. If a plebiscite were to be taken as to what is generally understood by dignity, we feel sure it would come out as a mere appearance, a seeming, an aspect. A man may seem or appear that which he is, or that which he is not. Honour, however, is something that is, something inside. A man of honour may not always seem such; he is not concerned to show it. A man's honour is something for his own conscience to approve; his dignity is ostensible, something for the approval of beholders, of outsiders. That is why we do not apotheosize dignity. We do not value it. We have no use for it. It is too cheap. A man of honour may at times be undignified. If he has any sense of honour, he won't mind that. The man whose only asset is this kind of dignity, however, is exceedingly discomfited by any lapse. Imagine a caller catching a mandarin playing 'bear' in his nursery! How the mandarin would 'lose face.' Yet what sort of a man is he who would feel ashamed of such innocent conduct intended to give pleasure to the young? The foreigner who prances about his bedroom of a morning, snarling at his wife over a missing shirt button, is not ashamed of his undignified behaviour. But outside, in public, he will wink at almost any offence or insult rather than 'make a scene.' That is dignity, as popularly understood. In a previous article on Chinese etiquette, and foreign too, we tried to show how similarly hollow it was, and is. The compensating beauty of the arrangement is that the dignity of such persons is their Samson's hair, their tendon Achilles, their vulnerable point. It is at once their armour and the most easily penetrated joint of it. The man who fears to 'lose face' is at the mercy of any one who does not care about this pretentious and shoddy attribute. Our contemporary evidently does not recognize the popular conception of it, however. It is, thinking of honour. "Most of us," it says, meaning foreigners, "have conceptions which we would hesitate to sacrifice for any monetary reward, however large." Honesty, in fact, is the main basis upon which the personal dignity of the European rests, and when a European loses his sense of honesty, the rest of his fellow-say that he has lost all sense of personal dignity. That comment is certainly new to us. We never dreamed of making it, and we never heard it made. In all seriousness, does it not depend upon the extent of the dishonesty? Let us consider what people think, not what they may pretend to think. Does the public regard JOHN WILLIAM STRAGO, who gets a mouth for coal stealing, and JABEZ BALFOUR, who misappropriates many thousands of pounds, through the same eyes? Suggest the idea of "dignity" to them: would they not, while denying it to the petty thief, hesitate in the case of the bigger rascal? Why, recently, when an officer of the British army was charged with misappropriating trust money, and his lawyer said it would all be returned, did not the magistrate, in dismissing him, say he had only himself to blame for his undignified position? What would the same magistrate have said of a mere clerk embezzling the petty cash of his employer? Surely nothing about dignity. As we read further, we find that our contemporary does admit that certain dignity—Chinese dignity—is meaningless, an "elaborate and grotesque attempt to keep up appearances." Quite right; but there is absolutely no warrant for suggesting that foreign dignity is anything better. Our code of honour in commercial ethics is higher, let us say, but it follows that our lapses from it are correspondingly more unworthy. Much Chinese 'squeeze,' as we have previously argued, while dishonest to us, appears to them merely sharp practice. If it fails, they do not lose face. The failure does not touch their dignity. Their attitude toward it is 'better luck next time.' But the dignity of foreign wrong-doers is no better. If their lapses can be hushed up, 'kept out of the papers,' their dignity remains unimpaired. Our contemporary goes on:

"Professor Giles has made the paradoxical but penetrating assertion that, while the Chinese are a nation of liars, they are not a nation of thieves, and this statement furnishes a key to the difficulty with which we are dealing. For if we examine the character of Chinese morality we shall see how it is that while in Europe the one propensity is generally held to be inseparable from the other, in China there is no necessary connection between them; and we shall arrive, too, at an explanation of the Chinese attitude towards life. To venture to sum up a somewhat big question in few words, we may say that Chinese morality is retrospective, basing itself for practical purposes upon the worship of ancestors, whereas European morality is prospective, and its touchstone is the welfare of descendants. Where Confucius would judge a man's actions by the test of conservatism, Kant would judge them by that of universality; and the Chinese European morality reaches out towards the future, the European morality is concerned only with the perpetuation of custom. From this point of view European morality gradually becomes dominated by absolute conceptions, but Chinese morality always remains dominated by those which are relative, until expediency becomes the lodestar to the life of a Chinese. He cannot there, because there is a dangerous disregard for property and there is a pernicious contempt for antiquity; but he can lie because truth is one of those absolute conceptions with which he is not called upon to deal."

With all proper respect, and perhaps with some loss of dignity, we feel compelled to retort "fudge." European morality does reach out to the ideal, but only to frame it and hang it on the wall. Why, for hundreds of years we have been teaching our budding Samurai that honesty is the best policy. Not the highest ideal, but the most expedient method. Even our contemporary, in its remark that the one propensity [? honesty or dignity] is held to be inseparable from the other, appears content with the thought that honesty is more dignified than dishonesty. At bottom, both honour and morals are everywhere matters of utility; utilitarianism is their universal essence. Honour, now all too rare, even in Europe, or too often falsely based, is the arbitrary code of a small community, of a group, of a family, or of a class. Morality is the arbitrary code of a bigger community, derived from communal necessity, and imperfectly expressed in its laws. What is perfectly moral in the Arctic circle may be immoral in the tropics. The moral Inuit gives enthusiasm to his feeble and useless grandparents: the moral European protects and nurtures all his diseased and crippled neighbours: the moral and dignified Chinaman squeezes you a few dollars: the moral European tradesman would blush to charge you more than an article is worth. But if our contemporary can point to any place in the wide world where expediency, "the lodestar of a Chinese," does not generally over-ride ethical "absolute conceptions," we hope it will do so. We shall hasten to look-see. In Europe, where it seems to think expediency does not count, we have heard of Morganatic marriages (in other circles called bigamy and most immoral), of dignified magistrates just back from the Derby finishing working men and bookmakers for transferring shillings in the way they transferred sovereigns; of Christian employers getting rid of servants too old to work, of guinea-pig directors of public companies, and of numerous other things where, if it be a "reaching out towards the ideal," we can only conclude there has been over-reaching. This loose way of lumping whole peoples, of prating of "Japanese commercial improbity," of European impeccability, of Scottish "nearness," of French hysteria, of Asiatic barbarity, of John Bull's courage, and so forth, is the cause of these tiresome arguments. One would think there never was an honourable Japanese, a European rogue, an open-handed Caledonian, a sober Frenchman, a gentle, peaceful Asiatic scholar, or a British coward. The phrases are handy and useful sometimes, we may as well admit, but as reasonable beings we must guard against letting such a phrase as "American hustle" persuade us there are no lazy, shiftless Americans. Professor GILES, when or if he said that the Chinese are a nation of liars, but not thieves, is not to be credited with a "penetrating assertion." It was merely a humorous impertinence.

Bishop Oldham illustrates that "fine power of intellectual discrimination and characterization" for which he has become distinguished in saying: Japan is the brain, China the hands, and India the heart of Asia, says an American paper.

A telegram from Tarrytown, New York, states that the police there recently tried a novel method of stopping furious drivers by motorists. They adopted the expedient of stretching a thick rope across the road, when a car came into view, with the result that a 1,000 dollar automobile was overturned and completely ruined, and its occupants, two of whom were women, were seriously injured. The owner has brought an action to recover the value of his wrecked car from the police authorities.

The business men of the mining city of Butte, Montana, will henceforth have no doubt of the superiority of newspapers to bill-posting stations as advertising mediums. Owing to a strike of printers, the local newspapers recently suspended publication for several weeks. Meanwhile, the business done fell off considerably, in some cases no less than 50 per cent, the theatres being the greatest sufferers. The loss is attributed by the advertisers themselves to their having to depend upon the "bill-boards" for announcing what they had to offer to the public.

In their attack on the police station at Yaju the Korean insurgents butchered two Japanese women and a child. Such deeds put them beyond the pale of all sympathy. It appears that two or three bands of insurgents contemplated a movement against Seoul. On the whole that would not be an unwelcome feature, since it would tend to the speedy quelling of the disturbance. It is alleged that a number of the fugitive soldiers are still lying hid in the capital, and that they are receiving assistance from certain foreigners by whose aid they have been enabled to obtain machinery for striking nickel coins with which they propose to defray what they call their military expenses.

Some Colombo fishermen, who went out to sea the other night, hooked a very large skate, which they were unable to pull ashore till early the next morning. The men went word by another boat, and two boats at once went to their assistance. The three boats managed to pull the skate close to the shore. The current, however, was so strong and the fish so heavy that they were unable, in spite of their combined efforts, to get it ashore. Two additional boats then went to assist them, and eventually the five boats hauled the gigantic skate ashore. It was two feet thick in the centre, and sold for seventy odd rupees. It would be interesting to know the size of the biggest skate caught off the Ceylon coast.

The Coastal Navigation Department of the O.S.K. has been investigating the causes of the constant accidents to steamers. Out of the total of 1,549 Japanese steamers, there are 1,208, which are of less than 1,000 tons, and most of these are engaged on coastal services. It is consequently concluded that the accidents are mainly attributable to the number of steamers plying along coasts where navigation is difficult, but it is held that in part the officers and crews of the vessels are to blame. The Kaisha has, therefore, framed new regulations and given instructions for their careful observance. The main points are that the superior officers are always to be in charge during navigation, and that on dark nights or in misty weather the vessels are to slow down and sound their sirens more frequently than in the past.

The vote imposed by the Chinese Government upon the export of cereals from the leased territory of Kwantung is said to have been inspired by ex-Governor Chou. Its effect has been disastrous to persons engaged in the despatch of millet and beans from Tairen, and incidentally the South Manchurian Railway finds its goods traffic appreciably reduced. The Jiji Shimpu has an article on this subject. It takes the lines that if China insists upon this vote, she will be practically surrendering the leased territory to Japan as a permanent possession, and such procedure is strikingly inconsistent not only with the attempts she has hitherto made to assert her sovereign power in the leased territory, but also with the rights, recovery policy which she so persistently pursues. Japan holds Kwantung under lease from the Chinese Government. Thus the right of eminent domain plainly is vested in China, and to allege that the Liaoting Peninsula, in spite of this lease, is no longer Chinese territory but belongs to a foreign State, is a plainly impossible position.

It is stated that the Chinese students in Japan are decreasing in number. This is attributed by a certain Chinese resident in Tokyo to the attitude taken by the Chinese Government, which is endeavouring to put a check on more of these students coming to this country, and also to the attitude adopted by the Japanese schools toward the Chinese students. This authority points out that the Government schools show a tendency to regard the Chinese students studying there as a burden, while the private schools are excessively eager to obtain money from them, and if not endeavouring to extort money, are invariably working for the interests of Japan only, entirely ignoring the interests of China. For this reason few of the students have any feelings of gratitude towards the Japanese, even after many years' study in Japan. On the contrary they have only apathy for the Japanese. It is these students, who, on their return to China, strongly advance anti-Japanese principles in the Chinese Government. At the first sight, the matter would seem trivial, concludes this authority, but in reality it is not so. These students are all to occupy responsible seats in the Government in future, and if the present attitude of the Japanese schools towards them is not rectified Japanese will be placed in a disadvantageous position in her diplomatic relations with China.

THE DES VŒUX ROAD MURDER.

ONE MAN EXECUTED.

Yesterday morning one of the three men sentenced to death for the murder of a foreman in Messrs. Watson's Aerated Water Factory was hanged at Victoria Gaol. As usual nothing was learned of the offence until after it had taken place, the announcement of the death inquiry for yesterday afternoon being the first intimation that the sentence had been carried out.

In the afternoon Mr. F. A. Haselard conducted an inquiry touching the death of Tam Pin alias Tam Tak, and Messrs. J. A. Tarrant, D. L. Gabbay and J. W. Sloyer composed the jury.

Mr. E. J. Pierpont, chief warder, said that deceased was received into Victoria Gaol under sentence of death on August 20th. The sentence was carried out at two minutes past five yesterday morning in presence of the Assistant Superintendent of the Gaol (Mr. R. J. Craig), Dr. Moore, witnesses, and the usual escort. Witnesses produced the warrant for the execution. Dr. Moore, medical officer in charge of Victoria Gaol, who was present at the execution, stated that death was instantaneous. He made a post mortem examination of the body and found that death was caused by dislocation of the neck.

The jury found that death was due to dislocation of the neck in the due course of law. It is apparent that as only one man has been executed, the death sentence passed upon the other two has been commuted.

"PRINZ SIGISMUND" IN A TYPHOON.

Although Hongkong has not been visited by a typhoon recently, it was generally known that several had been in the China Sea. Yesterday the Norddeutscher Lloyd steamer Prinz Sigismund arrived here from Nagasaki. Before leaving the northern port inquiries were made respecting typhoons but nothing more serious than rain and westerly wind was reported. However that night a terrific storm blew, and by next day those on board found that a typhoon was blowing. The vessel was holed from 2 a.m. till 5 p.m., after which the wind abated and the steamer was able to resume the voyage.

CORRESPONDENCE.

SHELLEY STREET.

[TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS"].

SIR,—Numerous accidents have occurred in Shelley Street, owing to the disgraceful nature of its surface. Some of them have had serious consequences. The stony path from the Club Lusitano up to Caine Road might be graded and concreted, and something should be done to the part from Caine Road to Mosque Street by the provision of more steps, say. A recent painful experience of my own added to the many other falls I know of, prompts this letter, in the hope that our worthy D. P. W. will see what he can do for us.—Yours truly,

SHANGHAI RUBBER CO.

The Statutory General Meeting of Shareholders in the Dominion Rubber Co., Ltd. was held at Shanghai on Sept. 3rd. Mr. J. C. Hanson, Chairman of the Company, presided, and there were present:—Messrs. A. McLeod, E. O. Cumming (Directors), J. E. Bingham, C. E. Ellis, J. A. Wattie, Chua Kan-chow and E. F. Bateman (Secretary), representing 9045 shares. The Chairman said:—Gentlemen, there is no business to be done, and this meeting is merely called to comply with the Hongkong Ordinances, which require that a statutory meeting be held within four months after the close of a company's business. I may mention, for the information of the shareholders, that everything seems to be going on satisfactorily. All the shares were taken up, and the purchase money has been paid over, and we have got from the Government a grant of the Haudra Estate, by which we obtain, I am glad to say, an area of 624 acres instead of the 350 acres mentioned in the prospectus, and we hope to get the Dominion Estate very shortly. With regard to all grants from the Government, as the staff is insufficient there is delay in the grants being issued; but everything, we are assured, is quite in order and our grant will be issued in another month. With regard to finance, it was one of the conditions that we should pay for the working of the estate from the beginning of the year, and we have now got the accounts of the expenses, which come to $6,530. I had hoped to have a more detailed report of the conditions on the estate, but our agents at Ipoh, Messrs. Aylebury and Garland write that the gentleman who should make up this report is unfortunately ill. Apparently the position is this: 214 acres have one year rubber-trees on them, and another 200 acres have been felled and are now in course of being planted with rubber; and our agent suggests that another 200 acres be opened up early next year as soon as the season for felling trees begins. We estimate the funds we have in hand will be sufficient to carry us on till March, and that there will be no necessity for a further call till March next year. Mr. Ede having to leave Shanghai for Hongkong, retired from the Directorate and we have been fortunate enough to get Mr. Hogg to take his place as Director. I hope to take a run home early next year, and if I get away soon enough my intention to pay a good visit to the Shanghai Estate and to this Estate also, as it is important that someone in connection with the Company should see for himself how things are going on.

On the conclusion of the Chairman's observations the meeting dissolved.

SUPREME COURT.

Wednesday, 11th September.

IN SUMMARY JURISDICTION.

Before Mr. A. G. WISE (Preliminary Judge).

"A NOTORIOUS LITIGANT."

Chan Shum sued Chan Kin to recover the sum of $180, being principal and interest due on money lent on September 19th, 1905. Mr. P. W. Goldring (of Messrs. Goldring and Barlow) appeared for the plaintiff, while the defendant appeared in person.

Plaintiff said he was a trader at 48, Central Market. He lent the defendant $200 for which he received a signed document. The loan was to bear interest at the rate of two per cent. per month. Witness received $30 on account of principal and $20 on account of interest on March 16th, 1906, and on July 7th of the same year he received $45 on account of principal and $30 on account of interest.

His Lordship—What has the defendant to say?

Defendant—That is what the plaintiff says, but I have something to say if your Lordship will allow me.

His Lordship—That's all right. Do you want to ask the plaintiff any questions?

Defendant—Yes, (to plaintiff)—In November 1905 was I not a partner with you in a pork business at 61, Yau-mat?—No.

I can prove this with other partners. Was not Chan Wo a partner, and did we not put in a capital of $500 altogether?—No.

Did not the Registrar-General take back our licence in May last year?—I don't know.

Mr. Goldring—If your Lordship recollects, this man previously admitted owing a certain amount.

His Lordship (to defendant)—What do you owe altogether?—$169.80.

And why haven't you paid him before?—He did not ask me for it.

He says he has?—I don't know about it.

Did you borrow $200 from him once?—Yes, but I paid $50, and that left $150 for interest to run on.

Did you sign the note produced?—Yes.

Well, how are you going to get behind it now?—I have something more to tell your Lordship. I owed him money and he took over my business for $80.

I don't care what he did; did you sign that document?—I did.

Very well, kindly tell me why you don't pay up?—I separated.

Never mind that. Have you receipts for any payments?—Yes.

Defendant here produced a paper which he said he received on his last payment, and remarked that plaintiff said he was willing to reduce principal and interest.

His Lordship—That is not a receipt?—It is a stamped document.

What is it for?—$58.

Mr. Goldring—That is what we admit having received.

His Lordship (to defendant)—How much did you owe him when he gave you a receipt for $58?—$90.

Why should he let you off the debt altogether on payment of so small a sum?—Because he knew I was out of work.

His Lordship—Oh! There is much brotherly love among the Chinese. Judgment and costs for plaintiff.

Mr. Goldring—I would ask your Lordship for immediate execution. This man is one of the most notorious litigants in the Colony.

His Lordship—Yes, I know him. The application is granted.

FRENCH STREET MURDER.

The hearing of the charge of murder against the two men, Kwok Chiu and Tso On, was continued at the Magistracy yesterday before Mr. F. A. Hazeland. They were charged with the murder of Lam Tsoi, a carpenter, who resided at 253, Des Vaux Road, on 27th August, in French Street, West Point. Inspector Collett prosecuted.

Serjt. Gordon stated that on August 27th he was on duty near the junction of French Street and Queen's Road West, and hearing a noise in French Street, proceeded in that direction and came upon the body of the deceased. He was dead. A stream of blood was running from the body. On examination, witness noticed six stab wounds in the back of the deceased, and one stab wound in the right eye. Next day he was present at the mortuary when the body was identified as that of Lam Tsoi. The defendants were arrested in a house at West Point. The first defendant was sitting on a bed and a Chinese constable pulled the second defendant from underneath the bed. Witness afterwards searched the room and found the knife produced in a mat bag hanging on the wall. When arrested, the first defendant had a stab wound on the back of his left hand. The nineteen sticks produced were found underneath the bed, another stick which was submitted to the Government analyst being found in the bag.

A blacksmith said he knew the two defendants. He was aware that a quarrel had arisen between the club of which deceased was a member and that of which the accused were members. On the 27th August, about 10 p.m., witness saw the deceased in the company of several men. They walked about for half an hour, and when they were coming back along Queen's Road deceased was in front at the junction of Queen's Road and Water Street. Somebody in another company of men called out. This crowd stopped and several of the men who composed it attacked the deceased, who with witness ran off. When they got to the junction of French Street and Queen's Road witness saw a man stab deceased, who gave a cry and fell to the ground. The first defendant was the man who stabbed the deceased. Witness continued to run and on looking over his shoulder saw he was being pursued by the second defendant.

Other witnesses were called who gave corroborative evidence, and the case was adjourned.

THE DUMB BELL ISLAND MURDER.

The fisherman To Hing Chun from Lantau Island who with his wife were charged with the murder of Man Yuk Fat at Pak Ngan Heung on August 25th were yesterday committed for trial by Mr. Melbourne.

Mr. F. Browne, Government analyst, gave evidence to the effect that the jacket produced had a number of bloodstains.

Mr. Goldsmith, assistant engineer, in the P.W.D., submitted a plan showing the house at which the murder was committed.

A Chinese constable spoke to arresting the second defendant, who had disappeared after the murder, and had returned to her house for rice.

Serjt. Angus deposed to having been in the Police Station at Cheung Chan on the 26th August when the first defendant, To Hing Chun, came in and reported that his house had been robbed the previous night. There were a number of men one of whom rushed at him with a dagger but he struck him down with a bad blow. The four men ran off, leaving the fifth. His wife and he tied the legs of this man. A $50 note and three $10 notes were reported to have been stolen. While defendant was making this report deceased's brother appeared at the Station and declared that To Hing Chun had murdered his brother. Witness spoke to arresting the defendant and to discovering the body of the murdered man covered with grass a little distance from defendants' house. In the house he found the two choppers and part of a queue produced.

Defendants reserved their defence. To Hing Chun saying he would call a witness at his trial.

ADSETTS.

We understand that during the last few days witnesses who are to give evidence in connection with the extradition proceedings for the return of Adsett to this Colony have been in attendance at the office of the Crown Solicitor. Their number is said to be between 20 and 30. Adsett, as has been reported, is to be taken to Manila by the U.S.S. Galvego, so in all probability the de bene esse evidence of these witnesses will be forwarded to that city.

TROUBLE IN THE CANTON HINTERLAND.

We are indebted to an Occasional Correspondent for the following information, sent under date Sept. 11th.

The officials of Canton have received telegraphic advice of a rising of rebels, abetted by some soldiers, in the Yam-chow district of Kwangtung. The garrison at Tai-chueh-hui, commanded by Tsotai Wang Hoo, is disaffected.

[Tai-chueh-hui is a market town close to the city of Fong-ching.]

On the 3rd inst. they joined forces with a mob of bandits, and looted the markets. They invaded the yamen of Magistrate Sang Chin-yun, and murdered him and his family and servants, to the number of nineteen. Then they marched to Yam-chow and Tung-hing, capturing both cities.

They cut a lot of telegraph wires, but failed to stop all communications.

The telegram received here [Canton] was sent via Pakhoi. His Excellency Woo, the Acting Viceroy, at once sent off two regiments to deal with the rebels.

UNIQUE JOURNALISM.

We are unforgotten glad that the Peking-Paris motor race is over. With the fullest sympathy with the Daily Telegraph's rejoicings over the "scoop," we yet leave a sigh of relief now that the paragraphs, exclamations, and apostrophes are to have a rest. Being English, perhaps, we misanderstand that sort of thing; but certainly no Englishman, having accomplished any feat a little beyond the ordinary, would go on like this:—

[It is a parody, by no means strained, of the Daily Telegraph's "unique" correspondence.]

Having slept, we arose. Fancy arising in Europe! So different from the Gobi desert. But even there one arises.

We are so accustomed to motoring now that we do it in our dreams.

Is it a journey—or a dream? Perhaps neither.

Nightmare perhaps.

We slept well, not so well as among the Chinese, with their faded odours, but we slept well.

Yet we arose in the morning. It is strange to think how morning succeeds morning. In Siberia it was just the same.

Passing from one country to another, one meets different people. But always we arose in the morning. Sooner or later, who knows, we shall arise in Paris. Paris!

Paris! Where they cannot love without passion.

We got into the motor—the same motor, the very same, that we got into, and out of, at Peking, at Kinkia, at Urga, at Vorhainidink. When one thinks of it, it is very strange, that it should be the same motor, morning after morning.

And every day the daily telegraph!

I must not speak of those daily telegraphings. I have not the courage. The emotion of the thought is too much.

To Paris!

And the next day we began again. We arose in the morning, and found the same motor.

How many miles have we not covered? I do not know. The Prince does not know. Perhaps Paris will know.

The countries pass like dreams. Soon there will be no more to pass!

No more daily telegrams!

But now those hours appear to be eternal hours of joy but yet hours of anguish; a subtle, vague, inexpressible anguish which makes us silent and invests us with all the external marks of sadness.

Saturday night.

Paris at last! We are in Paris. Evian W. Us and Company. To-morrow we will arise in the morning, but no more the same motor.

Here one drinks wine. From a glass. One puts one's lips to a glass, and one imbibes. It is done much the same at Irkutsk, at Peking.

But this is Paris. One pinches oneself. Yes, it is I.

The race is over.

I turn to Prince Borghese. The waitress embraces him. Strange. They do not do that in the Gobi desert.

Prince Borghese is dirty, but otherwise a prince. They cheer him, these Parisians, and throw flowers at him.

It is a solemn moment. I wish to weep. I sometimes wished the same in the Gobi desert.

[The rest is quoted verbatim at Irkutsk.]

This is a solemn moment. The vibrations of the crowd reach the height of delirium. We remain in our seats, confused, stupefied.

I, sitting on the side near the step, cannot make up my mind to slight.

For a few moments I experience the sensations that all this is a dream, a hallucination. It all seems impossible, absurd. I cannot persuade myself that we have really reached the end. I feel inert, and in a mechanical manner smoke a cigarette which had gone out long ago.

I turn to Prince Borghese. He still has his hand on the wheel. "Yeu-yeu!" they cry from the threshold of the Matin. Then I jump to the ground.

A howl of enthusiasm passes like a hurricane. I find myself embraced and kissed, and recognise in the personage who greets me so effusively the solemn hall-porter of the Matin, who has not been able to restrain his emotion.

We are dragged inside the palace in the midst of a deafening clamour. A band plays the Italian Royal March. I see again colleagues and friends, and shake their hands without speaking.

I find myself with wreaths of roses on my arms, and do not know how they got there.

The crowd shouts, and its tempestuous roar drowns the music. The people call for "The Prince," and Prince Borghese, pushed on to the balcony, gracefully salutes them, holding in one hand a large bouquet.

Champagne is unrolled, speeches are delivered, and they are photographed with and without flowers, and then, how it happened I know not, but I got quietly away, and had the pleasure of mixing, unknown among the crowd, abandoning Prince Borghese to the pains of popularity.

THE BRITISH CHINA SQUADRON.

MOVEMENTS OF THE SHIPS.

As stated in a recent issue, the British China Squadron is now at Vladivostok. From that port the squadron will visit Korea, Karafuto, Iort Learseff, and Nagasaki, arriving at the latter port in September. Then the "King Alfred" will return to Wei-hai-wai, on September 20th, and when the Admiral has paid a visit to Peking and Hankow, will return to Mirs Bay, where firing practice is to be carried out on October 20th. The "Kent" on her way down will visit Yokohama and Amoy. The "Astrea" will escort the destroyer flotilla to Chusan and then return to Wooning, until relieved by the "Pica". The "Monmouth" will carry out exercises at Wei-hai-wai until the "Bedford" arrives from Port Learseff. The heavy cruisers' tests will be carried out by both vessels, after which they will cruise independently in the Gulf of Pechili, and arrive at Mirs Bay by October 20th. The destroyers flotilla will return to Nagasaki, and after parting with the "Astrea" at Chusan will return to Hongkong, calling at the China Treaty Ports en route and subsequently rejoining the flagship in Mirs Bay.—Japan Chronicle.

THE SEATTLE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

The Tokyo Chamber of Commerce is in receipt of the following reply to its letter to the Seattle Chamber of Commerce:—

July 30, 1907.

To the Tokyo Chamber of Commerce, Osaka Chamber of Commerce, Kyoto Chamber of Commerce, Yokohama Chamber of Commerce, and Kobe Chamber of Commerce.

We have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of June 29th in relation to certain disturbances of San Francisco affecting some of your countrymen dwelling there.

The disturbances mentioned in your letter are purely local. They have been greatly magnified and we should infer from your letter that the reports of these occurrences which reached Japan are out of all proportion to the actual facts. This is usual in such cases. Reports from a long distance are generally apt to magnify the event many times. Nevertheless all good citizens here deplore all such disturbances, however small. We believe that you will find, upon inquiry amongst your fellow countrymen here, that in Seattle the Japanese are treated with as much consideration as the natives of any other country.

On the other hand it gives us pleasure to be able to say that we have always found them to be industrious, law abiding and loyal residents of the Republic, and in Seattle we have uniformly treated them accordingly. We beg to enclose herewith a resolution of this Chamber of Commerce, which was adopted before your letter was written, and which clearly shows our attitude toward your countrymen.

In the future, as in the past, Seattle will always be found standing for justice and fair play for the Japanese, as well as for all other nationalities within her borders. For more than ten years Seattle has been the American home port of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, the great Japanese Steamship Company. This Company has been a pioneer in opening up a profitable and friendly trade between the two countries. Commerce in our days is the most powerful and persuasive ambassador of peace and good will among nations. It brings the people of the world closer together, removes prejudice and promotes national friendship.

Not the least important mission of Chambers of Commerce, the spokesman so to speak, of the commerce of their respective countries, is to co-operate with one another in smoothing away and composing the differences that inevitably arise from time to time between the people of different countries as between communities in the same country. In this spirit, and with this end in view, the Seattle Chamber of Commerce extends to the Chambers of Commerce of the cities of Tokyo, Osaka, Kyoto, Yokohama and Kobe, its most friendly consideration, and trusts that the good relations which have existed so long between our cities as between our two countries, and with such manifest advantage to both, may continue unbroken into the far future.

EUROPEANS AND INDIANS.

NEEDLESSLY IRRITATING LANGUAGE.

The "Civil and Military Gazette" publishes a remarkable letter to the Editor from the Bishop of Lahore on the subject of the attitude of Europeans towards educated Indians.

The Bishop begins with a protest against the use in the Anglo-Indian Press of offensive epithets and goes on to say:—The fact is certain that we have ourselves produced these men and must in justice accept the fullest responsibility for them. Further, we have to live in days to come in an India in which both in number and influence they will inevitably increase. Surely, then, it is a want of common sense and practical wisdom, to put it on no higher ground than this, not to abstain from needless irritating language, most of all in the daily newspapers, which are so widely read nowadays by Indians and English alike, and I would urge also, in private and to the utmost degree possible, and from everything that adds to the difficulty, in any case so very grossly and with mutual respect to their work in this land. We all deplore the gulf which separates us. At the present time we recognize that the existence of this gulf increases immeasurably the difficulty of administration in India. Can it conceivably be diminished by language such as that which I am now referring to? If not, ought there not to be enough self-restraint and common sense in Englishmen to make them abstain from indulging in it? I do not for an instant question the existence at the present time in India of a considerable amount of undisguised disloyalty and sedition, and I for one believe that a government which does not deal firmly and promptly with everything of this kind, betrays its great public trust and goes far to alienate its right to rule; but what possible good can come of lumping the whole educated class together and treating them all as open to this reproach?—"M. Mail."

JAPANESE IN AMERICA.

A Japanese returned from the United States says that the "friction between Japanese and Americans is not caused by labour competition. Between America and Japan there exists what is politely called "A Reciprocal Treaty." Where the reciprocity comes in it is hard to see. Americans may settle here in any numbers, but our Government has been given to understand that Japanese labourers are not wanted in America, and for the past years our Foreign Office has been issuing permits to students, traders and officials—a queer classification, forsooth, which includes General Kuroki among emigrants. While labourers from Europe are swarming into the country, Japanese labourers are persistently kept out. From Italy alone 270,000 entered the States last year. Under these circumstances it is ridiculous to talk about labour competition between Japanese and Americans. It does not exist. Some of our newspapers were altogether at sea about the cause of the San Francisco disturbances. Japanese labour there has never been excluded by the Workmen's Union. One of the rules of this body is that if a single Japanese labourer is employed in San Francisco, the members of the Union are to go on strike. So formidable is the opposition to Japanese labour that the workmen from this country who succeed in entering the port at once go off to sea about the cause of the San Francisco disturbances.
